

Race for Rights

One man. One mission. One message.

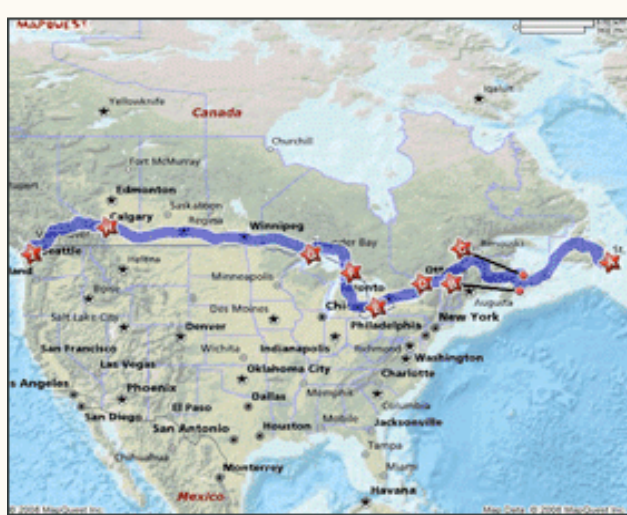

On July 13th, David Kay set out on a 7,700 km journey across Canada from St. John's to Victoria – by bike. We called it “Race for Rights”. By the time Dave reaches Victoria, he will have passed through 40 towns and cities in 40 days, sometimes cycling over 250 km in a day.

And something truly inspiring happened along the way. People came out to show their support. And not just in cities where the CTC has branches, but in small communities where committed individuals had heard about Dave's epic journey and wanted to help out. People offered their homes to Dave. And Canadians came out to bike with him, from ordinary citizens to former Olympians like Jeff Powell.

Meet Dave on his final stops in Vancouver and Victoria

Dave's last two stops are on Saturday, August 23rd at 2:00 PM at the Chinese Consulate on Granville St. in Vancouver and on Sunday, August 24th at 4:00 PM in Victoria at Mile Zero in Beacon Hill Park.

For more details on both events visit www.tibet.ca.

Dave is making a tremendous sacrifice for human rights in China. Now it's our turn.

You can support the CTC and Dave's mission by making a pledge of $10 for as many kilometres as you wish to help the CTC continue its work to bring human rights to Tibet and China. You can download a pledge form at www.tibet.ca/raceforrights or make an on-line donation at www.tibet.ca/en/join_donate.

For each 50km cumulatively pledged, a metre of the Canada Trail will be named in honour of one of the victims of the Tibet uprising or a defender of human rights in China. Help us remember these courageous resisters.

You can follow Dave's journey at www.tibet.ca/raceforrights or join the Race for Rights Facebook Group.

And please take a moment to forward this email to friends and colleagues, particularly those who live in Vancouver and Victoria.
